Richard C. Barron

Partner

Richard Barron brings a wealth of knowledge and business expertise to Allen Barron Inc. He has managed and directed both public sector and private companies, specializing in manufacturing processes and operations, and ultimately leading them to new areas of growth and profitability.

Barron's career began in his native England with a U.K. government research department, studying the technical functionality of nuclear particle accelerators. After immigrating to Canada, he became a member of the Bell Northern Research team that developed and implemented the first digital telephone switching systems.

In 1980, he began his climb in executive management in the United States, starting as Director of Manufacturing Operations for Northern Telecom. His corporate career continued with positions as President/CEO of numerous technology companies including General DataComm; Telenex Corporation, Inc.; Bourns Electronics; and Valor Electronics (a publicly held company with over $120 million in revenues) before becoming a partner in Allen Barron Inc. Today, Barron serves as a business firm advisor, and assists with strategy analysis and management consulting with a unique global perspective that provides a competitive advantage to Allen Barron Inc.'s clients.

Barron is also an active supporter of Boys to Men, a mentoring organization for at risk youth, and the TKF organization that teaches non-violence in middle schools.
